How are you Living Your Faith?

Live your faith. It's a phrase that we hear often in church or from mentors and peers, but it can be difficult to articulate what that really means. For such a simple phrase, we often feel paralyzed with how to act on the words and live our faith in our everyday lives. Living your faith is not something that is only confined to the four walls of the church, like volunteering in the nursery or leading a Sunday school class. Instead, it's an everyday, outward expression of your love for God and what He is doing in your life. It's a choice that we must make, and it's one that impacts everyone around us.

Below are five ways to intentionally live your faith in simple, everyday actions you may already be doing.

Be a friend.
Do nothing out of selfish ambition or conceit, but in humility consider others as more important than yourselves. Philippians 2:3

Who knew that living your faith could start with something as simple as being a friend to others? Being a good listener and attentive friend to those around you can express Christ's love through you, it shows others that you care, and that they're important to you.

Use your gifts.
Just as each one of you has received a gift, use it to serve others, as faithful stewards of God's grace in its various forms. 1 Peter 4:10-11

The Lord has blessed each of us with unique gifts that we can use to further His Kingdom. Sometimes, we don't even realize we have those gifts, but they've been given to us for the purpose of living and sharing our faith. Think about the gifts God gave you. What is an easy way for you to put just one of those gifts into practice to glorify God?

Radiate positivity.
A joyful heart is good medicine, but a broken spirit dries up the bones. Proverbs 17:22

Living your faith can be as simple as just having a positive attitude! Every morning, before we even get out of bed, we have a choice to make as to whether or not we will be positive or look for all of the small things to worry about. People take notice of our attitude and actions, and it's our task as Christ-followers to be an example for others in this way. Try to simply smile at one or two strangers today, you'll be blessed by how it makes you feel and you never know what kind of impact it can have on their day!

Show your gratitude.
Give thanks in everything; for this is God's will for you in Christ Jesus. 1 Thessalonians 5:18

We all have things to be thankful for, but it can be easy to overlook them or take them for granted if we aren't consciously recognizing the blessings around us. Thank your friend for taking the time to listen to you when you've had a rough morning. Thank your spouse for folding the laundry. Write a note to let someone know how grateful you are for them. Finding the time in your day to recognize and react to the things around you will open your eyes and the eyes of others to the kindness and blessings that God has provided for you.

Do your best. Whatever you do, do it from the heart, as something done for the Lord and not for people.

Colossians 3:23

At the end of the day, no one is perfect. We are all just trying to do our best and make Jesus proud, and we will make mistakes. But consciously choosing to do your best in everything you do is an outward expression that you are following what God asks of us in the Scripture. By working for the Lord and doing things for His glory instead of your own, you are living your faith and showing a great example to others around you.

From the Pastor's Palette

One of my favorite books is Gift From the Sea by Anne Morrow Lindbergh. The book consists of various introspective chapters, each centering around a “shell” metaphor, a “gift” from the sea, where Anne spent time alone to refresh her mind and spirit from the hustle and bustle of city life. Examining the configurations of the shells prompts Anne to think differently about life, relationships, marriage, and the aesthetic beauty of the human mind and heart.

A similarly touching book by Elisabeth Tova Bailey is titled The Sound of a Wild Snail Eating. In her book, Elisabeth describes what she observes around her during a long, debilitating illness. When she receives a plant complete with a woodland snail living within its soil, she becomes fascinated with the simplicity of its life. Soon, she develops a kind of relationship with the small creature, caring for it and feeding it leaves, its quiet munching a solace in her loneliness. While others might have found the tiny snail insignificant, Elisabeth realizes that each part of creation, whether human or creature, is part of an entire interwoven network of relationships that make our world fascinating and exquisitely beautiful. In understanding the mysterious life of the snail by her bedside, Elisabeth gains new insights into her own place within the world. In calling attention to the remarkable phenomena of the natural world around us, the book celebrates the resilience of human existence even in our darkest times.

As we leave the dark, cold barrenness of winter and enter into spring, we too notice the budding branches, the sound of returning birds, the green of unfolding, new leaves, the bursting forth of color. Warm winds blow white and pink petals across the roadways and paths. Rains pool and form muddy birdbaths. Bees begin pollinating flowers. Flower beds fill up with tulips and daffodils. And with spring comes a feeling that life is in the air. Indeed it is.

Life is a theme that God has developed from micro to macro in every part of the world from the first day of creation. As we continue in May celebrating the resurrection life of Jesus, his post-resurrection appearances to his stunned disciples, and the birth of the early church, we can get an awe-filled sense of how wondrous Life as a disciple can be.

Being a disciple of Jesus is a commitment to paying attention to the little miracles around us, the way life always springs from death and darkness, the way no matter how many times we try to “nail” Jesus down or wipe Him away, He always reappears powerfully and mightily in the world in new and exciting ways with His healing hand and loving heart.

This month as you prepare to be touched by the power of the Holy Spirit at Pentecost, remember that Life starts with a seed. You are that seed. And now is your time to burst forth with the love and beauty of the Gospel message so that all the world can experience the life-giving love of Jesus.

Never for a moment believe that your contribution is not enough. You just may be the next small miracle in someone else's life.

If you have a need to talk about something happening in your life, whether in sadness or joy, the pastor's door is always open and her ear always listening. Just give a call or email.
